Artificial Intelligence formulated this projection for compatibility purposes from the original article published at Global Journals. However, this technology is currently in beta. Therefore, kindly ignore odd layouts, missed formulae, text, tables, or figures.

Islamic Spirit as Revived in Al Mahmud's Poetry

Salma Begum<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup> International Islamic University Chittagong

Received: 9 December 2013 Accepted: 2 January 2014 Published: 15 January 2014

6 Abstract

1

2

3

Al Mahmud explores Muslim history for imagery and effectively uses them in his poetry to 7 speak for suppressed humanity in different corner of the world and to protest against the 8 oppressors of humanity. His poetry inspired by Islamic spirit pungently protests against 9 tyrants of the world. He resists imperialistic evil oppressors through Islamic spirit in his 10 rebellious poetry. Islam inspires its followers to abolish all kinds of injustice from earth and to 11 establish parity and peace on earth. He is greatly inspired by the spirit of jihad in Islam to 12 accomplice this task. He regards jihad as the last step to abolish evil as well as a means of self 13 defence. He has also glorified prayer by raising it to the most consecrated level infusing the 14 spirit of jihad in it and upheld the high ideals of humanity of Islam. He sings to restore the 15 rights of all mankind on earth and Islamic spirit adds an extra dimension to his song. His 16 poetic diction from rural Muslim world raises his poetry to an extra-ordinary level. 17

18

19 Index terms— jihad, humanity, muslim history, prayer, azan.

20 1 Introduction

l Mahmud, a major poet of Bengali literature, upholds Islamic spirit in many of his poetry. He uses Islamic 21 consciousness and Muslim history to resist imperialism, to prevent injustice or to alleviate evil from the world. 22 Even in his love poems, the use of words taken from the daily life of Muslim people, their culture and belief 23 is clearly evident. His choice of words from Muslim culture and the language really spoken by common people 24 25 gives his poetry a unique characteristic as Muhammad Motiur Rahman says, for poetic diction, Al Mahmud does 26 not explore dictionary laboriously, nor does he seek image to show off scholarly knowledge, rather he presents a colourful picture of his poetic imagination using easy and simple words exclusively familiar, common in rural 27 Muslim society (MotiurRahman, Al Mahmud and His Own Poetic World, Prekkhon, p 64). 28

In regard to poetic diction, Al Mahmud's idea is very near to that of William Wordsworth as the latter states in his A Preface to the Lyrical Ballads, that for the language of poetry he has used the words really spoken by men (Wordsworth, a Preface to Lyrical Ballads, p 27). Al Mahmud, a Muslim poet living in a Muslim society, easily and consciously uses words of Muslim culture that give his poetry a unique taste of novelty andmake him a peace loving poet. He says, '???.I've embraced Islam as my religion and peace of this world and the world hereafter' (Al Mahmud, a long way for poetry, p 33 cited by Motiur Rahman in Prekkhon p 70).

Islam is a religion of peace '?this day have I perfected your religion for you, completed my favour upon you, and have chosen for you Islam as your religion'(Al Quran, sura al Mai'dah 5:3). For establishing peace it wants abolition of all evil power and institutions working against peace in the society as well as in the world.

Again Islam affirms equity and parity among all human beings indiscriminating nation, religion, caste, sex, powerful, powerless, rich, poor in the world. Here in Islam, only Allah, who is the Creator and the Sustainer of the universe, is the Greatest and only Allah deserves greatness (Al Qur'an, sura Al Fatiha, 1: 1) and nothing is equal to Him (Al Qur'an, sura Ikhlas, 112: 4). Allah is the only one who has the Supreme power and the Supreme authority over all as it is declared in the Quran, Glorified be He In whose hands Is dominion; And He over all things Has power (Al Qur'an, sura al Mulk, 67: 1). So, according to Islam, only Allah deserves the greatness and honour from all His creation. He is the King of all Kings (Al Qur'an At Ti-n, 95:8) and all human <sup>45</sup> beings are his slaves (Al Qur'an, 1:5). Thus Islam denies discrimination between man and man and their prophet <sup>46</sup> Muhammad (peace be upon him) announces this in his farewell speech delivered in the field of Arafa. In his

<sup>47</sup> speech, after praising and thanking Allah, Prophet Muhammad (pbuh) said that all people are servants of Allah,

48 that they all descended from the same mother and father, all people are equal, regardless of their race, color,

49 language and class; the measure of superiority is their piety before Allah. Prophet Muhammad (pbuh) generally

<sup>50</sup> mentioned about the human rights. He emphasized the security of life, property and chastity. He ordered that people should be careful about human rights, avoid cruelty and haram (religiously forbidden) food and protect trusts; he threw light on the mutual rights, obligations and duties of the husband and wife. The Prophet also

53 stated that all Muslims are brothers and sisters, and he emphasized the importance of unity and cooperation

54 (Farewell Sermon of Muhammad, pbuh). This was a revolutionary declaration that equalizes all human being raising them to the level of man to show their obedience only to Allah. This equity and parity are embodied in the system of their performing prayer when all Muslims regardless the rich and the poor, the ruler and the ruled, $\,$  stand in the same line to prostrate before the Almighty Allah.

Jihad is another important factor in Islam, which is mostly misinterpreted too. According to Oxford Advanced Learners Dictionary, the meaning of Jihad is 'holy war' and 'struggle for achieving something' (A.S. Hornby, Oxford Advanced Learner's Dictionary). According to Islam, jihad means struggle against evil. Jihad is an Arabic word from the root Jee Ha Da. It literally means to struggle or strive.

<sup>62</sup> 'Jihad is struggling or striving in the way or sake of Allah. Jihad takes a very important status in the doctrine <sup>63</sup> of Islam and is one of the basic duties for every Muslim. Though, it has nothing whatsoever to do with the term <sup>64</sup> Holy War. Such a term, or its equivalent doesn't exist in the Islamic doctrine. The Christian Crusaders in the <sup>65</sup> mid-ages invented this ideology of Holy War. There is nothing "Holy" about wars. Wars only involve killings and <sup>66</sup> disasters! Jihad has many forms, ? Jihad of the heart/soul (jihad bin nafs/qalb) ? Jihad by the tongue (jihad <sup>67</sup> bil lisan) ? Jihad by the pen/knowledge (jihad bil qalam/ilm) ? Jihad by the hand (jihad bil yad) ? Jihad by <sup>68</sup> the sword (jihad bis saif)

Sometimes it is necessary to undertake Jihad by the sword. This would include usage of arsenals and engaging in a combat. This could be simply a bunch of freedom fighters or an organized campaign of army. Jihad by the

<sup>71</sup> sword is use of arms to engage into a combat. It is not misuse of arms to create violence. There are only two

72 situations where Jihad by the sword is allowed to be undertaken. a) For Self-Defence When someone attacks you

73 or when your nation has been attacked. Engaging into combat due to self defence.

<sup>74</sup> 2 b) Fighting against Evil and Unjust

75 It is also a sin if a Muslim sees unjust been done, capable of stopping it, yet not doing anything about it. This 76 can include war on drug, war on child labour as well as war on terror! The American administration today seems to be launching a global war on terror, but are they the first to launch the war on terror? The Muslims already 77 78 announced the war on terror fourteen centuries ago, under the name of Jihad bis saif! There are many rules and limitations when engaging in combat under the title of Jihad. For example, civilians are not to be harmed; trees 79 are not to be cut down; asylum should be granted to surrendering enemy soldiers; etc.'(justislam, internet) Al 80 Mahmud adopts the last form of jihad in his poetry as a means to uproot evil and to set the suppressed humanity 81 free. 82

Al Mahmud speaks for justice and humanity with the assurance of all basic human rights for all regardless 83 84 man, woman, rich, poor, black, white in the world. Wherever these rights are at a stake, his voice is high against 85 the oppressor. In this regard, he is highly inspired by the Prophet Muhammad (pbuh)'s farewell sermon where he clearly pronounces the equality of all men and discards all discrimination between man and man. The Prophet 86 declares, 'from today all discrimination between man and man is abolished. There is no superiority of Arabs 87 over non-Arabs, white over black, rich over poor; he who is the most loyal to Allah, is the best in the eyes of 88 Allah'(Prophet Muhammad, the Farewell Sermon). Undoubtedly, this exults any human-loving person. Prayer is 89 another feature of Islam. Al Mahmud also revives the spirit of prayer in his poems showing how prayer, instead 90 of being a means of getting small things, can be a source of strength to fight against evil, and to get the help of 91 Allah whose help, according to Islam, is the best help to accomplice any work. So he avails prayer to alleviate 92 evils of suppression and repression from the world. Thus he uses prayer for a great goal purposive of all good. 93 Emerson also echoes the same purpose of prayer, '?..prayer that craves a particular commodity,-anything less 94 95 than all good,-is vicious' (Emerson, self-reliance, Essays of Emerson edited by Tilak, p 106).

Al Mahmud applies Islamic idea of humanity, prayer, liberty, jihad or struggle against evil in his poetry. He presents these things of Islam with a view to freeing humanity from the hands of tyrants everywhere in the world.
 Application of these terms through common words of everyday use is not only wonderful but daring too.

Here in this article I have explored Al Mahmud's poems like 'Bakhtier's horse', 'whose flag it is on the conscienceless earth', 'Prayer at Qadre Night', 'Sound of Triumph', and 'The Soul of a Singing Poet'. In these poems Al Mahmud abundantly uses words of Islamic culture and brings out the spirit of jihad, prayer, freedom of human kind from slavery, absolute loyalty to the Almighty and revolt against all tyranny — everything to set humanity free and to sing the victory of mankind. 104 3 II.

105 4 Discussion

In the poem Bakhtier's Horse, Al Mahmud revives the spirit of 'jihad' to resist suppression, repression, and 106 injustice to set humanity free. Here he adopts the final form of jihad as the last means when all other means fail 107 108 to resist injustice of evil power. Here in this poem, he recalls from the history of Bangla, the incident of a great 109 Mujahid (fighter for justice) Bakhtier Khilji who attacked the palace of Lakkhan Sen who was a cruel dictator at that time. Lakkhan Sen tortured lower class people and Muslims of his state. Getting this news, Bakhtier 110 Khilji, from Indian territory, came at a storm-speed (only 17 soldiers could follow him) and entered the palace at 111 midday when Lakkhan Sen was taking lunch and at this news he escaped without making any resistance. In this 112 way, Bakhtier Khilji won Bangla without any bloodshed and he established a welfare state in Bangla. 113

?????he was not bloodthirsty. He would not like murder and torture. He used to satisfy the chiefs of internal administration and military army by establishing a kind of feudal system in the country (Sir Jadunath Sarker, History of Bengal vol. ii, Muslim Period, p 9 cited in Muslim History of Bengal, Abbas Ali Khan, p 25).

After the conquer of Bengal, Muhammad Bakhtier established internal laws and order. Though he set up mosques and Madrasas in different places of the country, he followed a generous policy towards the non-Muslims (Abbas Ali Khan, Muslim History of Bengal, p. 25). Al Mahmud adopts the spirit of jihad against the tyrant suppressor. Establishment of peace and order in Bangla by Bakhtier became possible by the extreme form of jihad that took place to set people free and not to enslave them under another king. Al Mahmud, obviously, is inspired by the following saying of Al Qur'an—And fight them on Until there is no more Tumult and oppression, And there prevail Justice and faith in Allah; (Al Qur'an ,sura al Bakarah, 2: 193).

According to Al Qur'an, a faithful Muslim's aim of life is to uproot from the earth all lordship and worship of 124 man and to establish the lordship of Allah only. This is the aim of jihad (Delwar Hossain Saydee, An Appraised 125 Nation Bound to Worst Destination, p, 493). Jihad of extreme stage aims at setting the suppressed and oppressed 126 127 humanity free from all man-made lordship, authority, sovereignty, suppression, oppression and deprivation. Al 128 Qur'an says—And why should you not Fight in the cause of Allah And for those who, being weak, Are ill-treated (and oppressed)?-Men, women, and children, Whose cry is: "Our Lord! Rescue us from this town, Whose people 129 are oppressors; And raise for us from You One who will help!" (Al Qur'an, sura Nisa, 4:75). This Qur'anic 130 inspiration is evident in lines of this poem. Here Bakhtier fights for this very cause. In this poem a Muslim 131 mother is telling story of Bakhtier to her boy while sleeping. Being greatly inspired by the story, the boy sleeps 132 and in his dream he shouts 'jihad, jihad' that means he is inspired greatly by the chivalry of the soldier and wants 133 134 to fight against all tyrants of the world. A few lines from the poem, My heart often cries for fighting Blood seems to be the only solution, gunpowder the supreme pleasure; And then I wake up uttering jihad, jihad in dreams. 135 136 137 in the chest of the pillow. It seems to him he is hearing the horse race. He asks, Mom, who is Bakhtier? Mother 138 moves the fan and smiles, He is Allah's soldier, the king of the destitute. Wherever the believers fear to call azan, And man worships man, He appears there. The rider of the white horse of the Khiljis. 139

140 Look, the tyrant is escaping through the back door Look. (Al Mahmud in English, translated by Ali Azgor, p 46) Al Mahmud's aspiration for freeing humanity obviously gets strength from Islamic ideology and the history 141 of Muslims. Here Al Mahmud presents Bakhtier Khilji as a symbol of justice, an emissary to free the suppressed 142 humanity, a chivalrous Mujahid at whose appearance ' jalim palai khirki deye'/ dictator escapes through back 143 door. This historical event naturally revives all freedom loving people's spirit. Another thing is notable here, 144 Al Mahmud shows how Muslim mothers can make up the mentality of their children by telling them the true 145 chivalrous story of their own history instead of making them timid by telling fictitious false ghostly stories. In 146 147 this poem, the mother very nicely tells her boy-child when she is trying to lull him, how Bakhtier riding on white horse is coming with seventeen soldiers with open swords to fight against the dictator who enslaved human being. 148 The boy becomes curious to know about Bakhtier Khilji. Mother replies that he is the soldier of Allah, and the 149 king of the suppressed poor people. She /mother makes her child visionary and dreamy. The child seems to hear 150 in the pillow his own heart-beat as the sound of horses toe. Al Mahmud now wants that inspired boy to fight 151 against all injustice because there is no way but fighting to bring back peace in the world. But for success in 152 jihad the poet feels extreme need of Allah's help to save humanity. 153

To get the help of Allah, Al Mahmud prays at a dignified night. He writes a nice poem on 'Qadr Night' (Lailatul Qadre), a superbly dignified night when the holy Quran was revealed to Prophet Muhammad (pbuh). Allah Subhanahu Ta'ala declares that this night is better than. thousands of months.

157 The Night of Power Is better than A thousand Months. Therein come down The Angels and the Spirit By 158 Allah's permission, On every errand : Peace! ??. This Until the rise of morn! (Al Qur'an, 97:3-5, The Holy Qur'an 159 translation by Abdullah Yusuf Ali) So, prostrating himself at this night, Al Mahmud earnestly prays to Allah 160 not for any trivial personal things or for his personal redemption hereafter, but he prays to save the liberty of his nation of which majority people are Muslims. He earnestly and humbly prays not to destroy the nation for 161 the sins committed by their kings because Allah says that no person will shoulder the burden of sin of others. 162 He expresses his extreme fear of losing liberty at the hands of idol-worshippers and so he importunates to Allah 163 not to handover the string of liberty to powerful pagans. He justifies his importunities saying that the people of 164 his country by generation were servants of Allah and in the past they never escaped from any jihad in the path 165 of Allah. The poet also assures that the prostrated children will finally choose the solution of blood and bomb if only the mercy of Allah is with them. He prays to rescue his country from evil darkness, save the people from robbers and hijackers, protect the educational institutions from the hands of bandits and to bestow knowledge on all people. An extract from the poem will make it clear, O Allah O Lord of all rising and declining rays Bestow all sorts of blessings of this great holy night on me.

171 ??????????.. O Allah, The lord of the holiest night, We know you don't impose one's sin upon another.

O you who promised that the father's sin wouldn't touch the son, Look, with more than a thousand human corpses we are prostrating in this blessed night When the holy Qur'an was revealed O Allah, don't destroy us for the sin of our kings and princes.

Why would you like to give an old monotheistic people's rope of freedom Into the hands of the brute idolaters!
Haven't we been your slaves for generations? Never have we retreated from any jihad in your name. If you bless
Our prostrating children also will at last choose the solution through bullets and blood (A Prayer at Kadr Night, Al Mahmud in English, p 54-55 )

His concern for his motherland is very touching here. Here he prays for the optimum instead of any trivial thing. He gives topmost priority to liberty and knowledge in his prayer. Thus Al Mahmud upholds Islamic norm of prayer making jihad its essence. He also glorifies prayer by elevating it to the level of Jihad and setting them at the dignified night of Qadre.

Justice of Islam is evidently stated in this poem. Al Mahmud mentions here that Allah does not punish one person for the crime or sin of others; son should not be punished for the sin committed by father (Al Qur'an, 17:15). So, he argues that the people of his country should not be punished or destroyed because of their kings' and forefathers' sin and he ardently prays for this to the Almighty, because He is the greatest Judge as it is mentioned in surah AtTin——-" Is not Allah the wisest of Judges?" (Al Qur'an, 95: 8).Another point is evident here. Islam wants freedom of humanity from the hands of tyrants to save and elevate it.

In the poem 'digbijoyer dhoni' or 'Sound of Triumph Al Mahmud sings the song of liberty and humanity on 189 the background of war of independence of his country. He symbolically describes how he with his fellow people 190 crossed the river of blood after shouldering the chain for a long time. But at last, he and his fellow countrymen 191 have been able to reach on the shore of victory. Still he feels that though they have crossed many rivers, they 192 have not yet given up their slavery. So they crossed the river, made up of their own blood, at dawn. It was dawn 193 and hearing the sound of a miraculous Azan (calling for prayer)floated through their being dropping off all pains 194 and fetters. Al Mahmud feels that freedom is being sounded in the calling of Muazzin (person who announces 195 Azan). Then he prostrates before the Almighty Allah. Then he wants all people to start their unending journey 196 without any pause until they reach the destination neglecting the buzzing of fear, because there was no sign of 197 cowardice and fear on anybody's dress of them. Finally, he wishes the procession to go ahead crossing all sound 198 penetrating the horizon towards Azan, the call, the victory. Here in this poem, the consciousness of Islam makes 199 him confident as he says, Our very Azan is our freedom. Our prostration is in fact the victory song of humanity. 200 ??????. Then we, after crossing the river built in our blood, notice that it is dawn. That was crack of dawn A 201 miraculous Azan floated through our being And dropped off all fastenings of fetters and pain So, isn't the freedom 202 being pronounced through that calling of Muajjin raising face towards the the firmament? Let's prostrate down. 203

<sup>204</sup> 5 ?????. Crossing all sounds may this procession pierce out the <sup>205</sup> horizon Towards Azan

To call To triumph. Here he feels identical with all rivers, all people, all birds, and insects, and environment. Al 206 207 Mahmud appears with his usual images of country life. These images are infused with dome of mosque inseparable 208 from the life of Muslims that form the majority of his nation. Millions of domes of mosques sprout from the existence of this Muslim people making them inspired by the sound of Azan. Here 'Azan' is not simply a call 209 to people for prayer, rather it has become a symbol of independence; as the Muslims through Azan announces 210 the supremacy of the Almighty Allah , only to whom the Muslims bend their heads instead of to any other 211 power of the world. Muslims show their obedience to and dependence on Allah only by prostrating before Him 212 and to no other power. Here 'prostration to Allah' becomes the symbol of victory of humanity because through 213 this prostration all men become equal before Allah without any discrimination among the people. Few lines 214 are quoted from Azan to clarify the idea: Allah is greatest, Allah is greatest. Ash-hadu an-l? il?ha ill? all?h 215 I bear witness that there is no Ilah but Allah. Ash-hadu anna Mu?hammadan-Rasulull?h I bear witness that 216 217 Muhammad is the Messenger of God.

218 Hayya ?ala ?-?sal?t Hasten to worship (salat Hayya ?ala 'l-). fal?? Hasten to success.

219 6 All?hu akbar

220 Allah is greatest.

<sup>221</sup> 7 L? il?ha ill?-All?h

222 There is no Ilah but Allah.

He also mentions that by the sound of an unearthly Azan, all fetters dropped off from their body and so he assures only this calling of Muajjin announces the sound of freedom of people. Here Al Mahmud hints at the Muslim history of his country where people were freed from slavery after Islamic rule was established. Then Al Mahmud suggests his people to prostrate down to express thankfulness and acquiring inspiration he tells to start their irresistible speed of going ahead towards Azan that becomes a symbol of victory this time.

Al Mahmud takes shelter in Muslim history of Indian subcontinent where Muslim rulers ruled for almost eight hundred years. In this poem he refers to the Indian history of the emperor Kutubuddin Ibek who was a slave-turned-emperor. He built a high rise tower known as 'kutub minar'. Al Mahmud takes this tower standing unshaken even by rain, winter, summer and all sorts of storms, as a symbol of freedom of Hindustan(India). In this poem, he says that the revolt of a slave-emperor against all types of slavery is only the sign of keeping head erected. As he was a slave, so he built this cloudtouching tower against the slavery of this subcontinent.

And now that tower is a warning against colonialism and imperialistic capitalism. The poet leans on this tower 234 after searching for a room for standing. Here the souls, surrounding him like fire-flies, of many poets are weaving 235 design with light. After a while, he will go to the Royal Mosque through the Sher shahshuri Road crossing the 236 old fort to offer Azan. Delhi is nearlet it be sung in the roaming and restless poet. In this poem, al Mahmud 237 refers to historical events during Muslim rule in India. Kutub Minar —-made by the emperor Kutubuddin Ibek 238 239 stands for liberty and the warning to those who tend to extort the liberty of others. Kutubuddin being inspired 240 by Islam established parity and uprooted slavery among men. So, Al Mahmud's inspiration is evident in his reference to the kutub minar. Here he also refers to 'Azan' that he takes for announcing the greatness of Allah 241 to whom all people should down their heads and to nobody else. So Al Mahmud's desire for fraternity and parity 242 among men gets another vivid outlet here. A few lines from the poem, I felt Kutubuddin Ibek's large gesture 243

244 like a huge forefinger, The gesture of independence of Hindustan. Standing with so straight a head That remains

<sup>245</sup> unshaken by the force of clouds, rain, winter, summer Storms and seasons.

Islamic Spirit as Revived in Al Mahmud's Poetry .1 246

The rebellion of a slave emperor against all sorts of slavery Simply a symbol of holding the head high. ???????? 247

Today that petrified forefinger is a sign Protesting colonialism and imperialistic capital. (The Singing Soul of a 248 Poet, Al Mahmud in English, p 105) Thus Al Mahmud, standing against the seculars, highlights the very Islamic 249 culture and consciousness inseparable from the Muslims' lives of his territory. As a responsible poet, he regards 250 it his duty to uphold the life, culture and mental make-up of countrymen for whom he writes his poetry. He also 251

- upholds Islam's eternal beauty of humanity, liberty, equality, freedom from human slavery. 252
- The revival and fusion of Islamic spirit gives his poetry novelty and diversity. Using very common ordinary 253 words touching the real life of Muslim people Al Mahmud writes excellently humanitarian poems that appeal to 254 all freedom loving people of the world. Being spirited by Islam, his poetry rises to an extra-ordinary height.
- 255
- [Tilak et al. ()], R Tilak, Essays, Emerson. 1989. 256
- [Mahmud and Shamagra ()], Al Mahmud, Kobita Shamagra. Ananya 2006. 257
- [Azgor ()], A Azgor. Al Mahmud in English 2006. (Ananya) 258
- [Prekkhon (2007)], Prekkhon. July-September and October-December, 2007. 259
- [Abdullah Yusuf Ali (ed.)] Al Qur'an translation by, Abdullah Yusuf Ali (ed.) 260
- [Saydee ()] An Appraised Nation Bound to the Worst Destination, D Saydee . 2014. 261
- [Hornby ()] Oxford Advanced Learners' Dictionary, A S Hornby . 1994. Oxford University Press. Khan, A.A, 262
- Muslim History of Bengal. (New 8 th edition) 263
- [Sircar] Jadunath Sircar. History of Bengal, p. 9. 264
- [Sen ()] Wordsworth's A Preface to Lyrical Ballads, S Sen . 1997. 265