Abstract

The study was based on the socio-cultural significance of blessing and curses in Woreilu Woreda, South Wollo Zone, Ethiopia. The main aim of this study was to study the origin of blessings and curses and to demonstrate in detail their benefits and purposes. Thus, the study could be a baseline as a starting point for researchers who want to study around the community, examine the interaction between blessing and curse, the sequence of performance as well as a detailed and in-depth look at the community's reaction to the subject. Both primary and secondary data sources were considered. The available data was analyzed by a functionalism approach. The finding showed that blessing and curse used to develop the moral law of the society used to shape the generation with humanity and ethics. The local community gives responsibility for the clan chiefs, religious leaders, and public figures to perform blessings and curses, and it has been believed that these individuals had relationship with the supernatural power (God). The finding confirmed that curses and blessing used by the people as conflict resolution in the study area. On the other hand, the study found that curses and blessings used to reflect and influence human emotions such as anxiety, fear, dismay, joy, and sadness.

Index terms— blessings, culture, curses, performance, socio-cultural benefits.

1 Introduction

olklore is one of the areas in which culture has been studied. Thus, it includes the spiritual and material resources of a society. These resources have been studied by sub branches of folklore such as ethnography, material culture, and ethnography practical skills. This study focuses on the socio-cultural significance of blessings and curses, which are part of the rituals in Woreilu, South Wollo, Ethiopia.

Blessings and curses are parts of the oral tradition passed from generation to generation orally. It is the expression of the desire to be loved by the human beings and by their creator for their good deeds and actions. Leslaw, Wolf./1973, 158/ describe it as "act or words of one who bless a special favor, mercy or benefit, a favor or gift bestowed by God there by bringing happiness. And the evoking of God's favor upon a person etc." From this narration, we learn that the words of someone who bless are a special gift from God, the source of happiness, prayer, good desire conveyed to one in good will for good conduct.

People face many challenges in their life, and they want the good things of the past to come back and the bad to disappear forever. Therefore, they wish all their sorrows be turned into good, that they might have healed; they would like to have a full, satisfying, and happy marriage, need no divorce, want wellbeing and long life. So when they bless, they express their desire for life, wealth, marriage, love, and peace to someone. Thus, the blessing is the reward that a human being receives for their good deeds in life. John H. Mc Dowell (2000,6), well narrated that blessing one desire for good things to come to us; when he describes this idea, "the blessing describes a condition in which everything in a person life is fruitful, prosperous, healthy reproductive, victorious and uplifted."

The root of the word curse is the Geez word "curse." If a person in a particular social norm does what he is not expected to do or doesn't do what he is expected to do in the community, he will be punished and get 45 cursed. Cursing stems from bitter hatred and malice; when love runs out, hatred emanates from the spirit realm.

46 Therefore, a curse is a way of expressing the evil desires upon the cursed person in different ways. In his book 47 "The Curse of Tongues" (1957,11), Douglas Busk tells us about the meaning of a curse, "the expression of a 48 wish that main future, evil doom befall on another. A formula of charm intended to cause such misfortune to 49 another." On the other hand, scholar James A. Matisoff states the following about the nature of curses. A curse 50 is a prayer or invocation for harm or injury to come upon one; a cause of great detriment of misfortune utter 51 off ensue words in anger or annoyance; to call upon divine or supernatural power to send injury upon; be bring 52 great evil upon, afflict (1979,6). He described curse as a desire in which bad luck, misfortune, and mischief 53 come upon someone.

54 Therefore, this study aimed to examine the origins of blessings and curses and to show in detail how they are 55 functional and useful. The author selected the study area because of the unique blessings and curses performed 56 by the local community. The author has never had a national or international report on the socio-cultural benefits 57 of blessings and curses performed in South Wollo. And this study is believed to fills such a gap and reflects a 58 unique perspective in the study area.

60 3 Research Methods

61 The intended objectives were attained by primary and secondary data sources. After the study's aim and the 62 research questions identified, various published and unpublished information sources related to the subject were 63 collected from the library. Key informants, observation, interviews, and group discussions were used as primary 64 data sources. The data was analyzed by a functionalism approach. The data analysis focused on some typical 65 blessings and curses performed on the moral value development of the people in the study area.

78 6 Result and Discussion

79 7 a) Origin of Blessing and Curse

80 When we talk about the origin of curse and blessing, it is appropriate to ask questions like how, by whom, and 81 when. In this regard, there are various opinions about its origin that have been found in various religious books.

82 Both the blessing and the curse are the reflections of the social connection that accompanies the creation of 83 language as human beings began to live in a community. Like other literary fields, these are not the products of 84 a particular individual or group. Evidenced showed that curses and blessings created in collective participation.
85 The performance is in between two or more parties because there must be curser and the cursed; the one who 86 offer the blessing and blessed as well as the superpower must be considered.

87 About the origin, Matisoff, James A. said that "the origin of curses and blessing is to obey God and be blessed, 88 disobey God and be cursed." Hence, those who obey God get the blessing, and those who disobey God get cursed.
89 In this regard, the Bible is the primary reference. The first part of this book, Genesis, gives a direct answer to 90 the views of the followers of Christianity. This indicates the need for independent research. This section is found 91 in the Old Testament and deals with the creation from the beginning up to the end.

92 It says that the Creator completed the creation of the immortals and the inanimate, the giant, and the microbes 93 in six working days. On the fifth day, he created underwater insects and flying birds. When God observed that 94 his creation is good, it tells us that he has blessed the creatures. "God blessed them, saying, reproduce and 95 multiply and fill the waters of the sea; and let birds multiply on earth (Genesis 1:22). It also tells us that on the 96 sixth day, after he completed all the rest of life forms on earth, he created man on the earth and created man in 97 his image. This creature, human beings, has been empowered and blessed as the ruler of all the rest creatures.
98 "God created man in his image. He created them as male and female. And God blessed them, and he said them, 99 let you be fruitful, multiply, fill the earth; and rule it. Let human being rule the fish of the sea and the beasts 100 of the earth; rule every bird of the sky, and every living creature, and every creeping thing that creeps on the 101 earth."(Genesis 1: 27-28). As mentioned above, after creation, God (the Creator) blessed human beings, and 102 he empowered man over the living and the physical world. In general, the blessing is not only created by the 103 community or an individual but also originated from the supernatural power.

104 In the same way, we find the curse in this metaphor. It said that the Creator gave commands for Adam and 105 Eve, who believed to be the origin of human beings, by placing them in the Garden of Eden. But Adam and Eve 106 were punished for disobeying God's command. And his punishment was on the whole earth. He describes this in 107 Genesis (3: 14-19), because of its disobedience, God said to the snake, unlike the rest of animals and creatures, 108 let you be cursed forever, creep with your chest or stomach, and graze soil forever. Besides, God said to the 109 woman, "let too much anxiety be upon you, give birth in too much of anxiety and pain, and after you give birth, 110 your desire will be to your husband. We can understand from this narration that curses, like blessings, and other 111 literary, created not only in human terms but also directly from the Creator.

112 Adam and Eve, or Adam and Eve, are believed to have been the first humans, as both Christianity and Islam 113 claim. They were made of dust and received the blessings of their Creator. At the time of their disobedience, 114 the land of their origin had cursed. Hence, they ha cursed because they originated from earth dust. As this 115 mythology, blessings and curses came from the Creator to Adam and his life, and as it has been indicated in the 116 Old Testament, from them passed on to Cain, the son of Adam who killed his brother, and then to all humanity.

117 We recognize that this practice had been used by the society to punish the disobedient, condemn the enemies, 118 weak (elders and mothers) relies on the cursing as anchorage and is a reflection of a longstanding society. Cursing, 119 by its very nature, as it is prophetic and lustful, does not happen at one time or place. Knowing this, clients 120 wait patiently for the curse to come upon those cursed, calling on the name of their God or the spirits they trust.
121 The point is whether the weaker, the steadfast believers of the curse, were able to find spiritual relief by cursing 122 their enemies and wrong doers. In this regard, James Hasting (vol. 4, 367) states that "the curse is particularly 123 the weapon of the wronged and oppressed against their more powerful enemies; and Zealots against their bigoted

125 About the origins of curse and blessing, the scholars who studied the development of non-religious societies 126 said that humanity in their life processes face natural disasters and challenges due to various conflicts among 127 themselves. Hence, to win and get relief from these catastrophes, they probably worshiped the sun, moon, stars, 128 light and darkness, hills and rivers, etc. They also prostrated for powers starting from sculptures made by them 129 up to the spirit created in their minds. As a result, they believe that there is no power other than these forces, 130 and because of this belief, they ask God to give them the good deeds they do and destroy the bad ones. So they 131 said that the blessing and the curse came from these sources. James A. Matisff (2000, 4) John H. M CDowell 132 (2000, 3) It has been found difficult to point out the exact time when the blessing and the curse began. Still, as 133 it has been described so far, records show that it took place when civilization and the spread of various beliefs, 134 as well as the creation of human beings.

135 8 b) Circumstances for Blessing and Cursing

136 Cursing, like all other forms of speech, has its own set of circumstances to occur, such as anger, trouble, injustice, 137 hatred, fear, and so on. The New Catholic Encyclopedia states that "the occasion for the course may be anger 138 and fear, but it may also be hate and envy." Hence, cursing is a phenomenon that occurs in the spirit of anger, 139 fear, hatred, and jealousy.

140 The phenomenon of the curse and the atmosphere is dark and gloomy. The occasion of the curses is bad luck, 141 and there is no bright hope for life. To a certain extent, it signifies weakness. The possibilities are out of control.
142 From the ancient Scriptures, Adam had lost his courage after he got cursed. He had broken heart, his knees were 143 shaking. He experienced a stressful life on earth.

144 On the contrary, blessing takes place on a variety of occasions when there is good and good deeds, happiness 145 and hope, contentment and love.

146 Hence, both curses and blessings are present in any society, and both have reasons (occasions) for occurrences.
147 James Hosting commented on this idea and said that "blessing and curse found in all races. The blessing told 148 by thought and by words. Notably, that the blessing by words is the more powerful, but the curse by thought is 149 more powerful than that by words." According to his narration, curse and blessing are found in all societies and 150 are practiced both in speech and in thought.

151 9 c) Interaction between Blessings and Curses

152 When we are talking about blessings and curses it is clear that one is the opposite of the other. The main point to 153 recall is that according to Matisoff, how people understand the relationship of the words? How the relationship 154 founded between bad and good things? And how do people associate blessing with a curse? Why they relate 155 these issues together? According to the Encyclopedia of Religion and Ethics (1965, 367), even though the two 156 issues are contradictory to each other, they are mutually exclusive and should be studied side by side. "Cursing 157 and blessing are perfect opposites, and are therefore, appropriately taken together for analysis and description."
158 Hence, we have to investigate blessings and curses together.

159 When one gets blessed for his good manners, his enemies will get cursed at the same time. For example, 160 someone who offers the blessing could say that "let your enemy's eyes get darkened and unable to see, and their 161 legs bow down.” In so doing, they blessed one for his good deeds and his enemies get cursed simultaneously.

162 Therefore, the narration supports the fact that these two things are inseparable.

163 According to James Hosting (1965, 367), curses and blessings are verbal wishes for harm or good upon someone.
164 Besides, one can express his desire in the name of God or the Spirit. Hence, the interaction between these issues 165 emphasizes that both have the same power and that there is a state of expression of one on the other. Thus, in 166 one hand it is a matter of destiny and desire, and in the other, it is of will and truth. The speaker can express 167 in a positive or negative way. That is why we said that they must go together, even if they have contradictions.

168 These two issues may seem contradictory, but when we put them in balance, both play a role in preserving 169 and sustaining the values of the community.

170 10 d) Dateless of Blessing and Curse

171 Blessings and curses have a religious origin and believed to have been passed down from generation to generation 172 in the community with firm basement. As an example, let us look at the expressions, ”let your descents cursed, 173 and your offspring blessed;” the above ideas related to curse and blessing. In this regard, we can see that there 174 are individuals who get cursed because of their bad manners, or individuals who get blessed because of their 175 good deeds. Hence, we can see that the curse and blessing given to the parents can pass to their next generations 176 through time. Moreover, blessings and curses based on race, health, wealth, knowledge and understanding, trust, 177 love, and hate, etc., are transcendent.

178 IV. The Socio-Cultural Significances of Blessing and Cursing

179 Culture is useful when practiced and preserved. Blessings and curses also have their own goals and purposes.
180 The Bible and the Holy Qur’an, written from the earliest times when human beings created, are seen cursing and 181 blessing human beings. Since then, blessings and curses practiced by mankind as incentive and negative moral 182 deterrents. In this way, the community used it to protect its social value and submit to the Creator justice.

183 Curse and blessing derived from the customary law of the community, so the blessing and the curse are said 184 to be based on customary law. Hence, the legislation, enforcement, and interpretation of the law are done by the 185 community. Thus, there are elders, religious leaders, authorized local leaders, and others authorized by the local 186 people to curse and bless. These people believed to have the power and authority to seek and interact with the 187 universal divine power before performing their function. During the current study, the author confirmed that 188 they were responsible for their actions.

189 The authority given to those public figures to curses and bless by the local community is so great and believed 190 to determine human destiny. Thus, when a person is blessed, he or she can imagine a new world in his or her 191 mind. When he/she is cursed, he/she plagued with evil deeds. These make harder for them to move forward, and 192 they reconsider to explore the local culture; because it is not possible to challenge or violate traditional values.
193 Moreover, curses and blessings play vital role in resolving conflicts and various social events in society.

194 For the society to be morally built and for maintaining sustainability in the coming generation, there is a 195 blessing ceremony for parents who wish to raise their children ethically and gracefully, educate children for the 196 benefit of the country and the nation. Hence they said that ”let our children grow and develop ethically and let 197 they stand for their nation.” On the contrary, the author has noticed that there are influential curses like ”let 198 you become infertile” upon someone’s children with bad connotations that make the fertile person as if she/he is 199 infertile.

200 Based on the data obtained from the key informants, the local people believed that a person who is blessed is 201 successful in his/her career, successful in life. On the contrary, the cursed person will have the most miserable 202 life ever. Besides, curses have created social stigma, as well as social, psychological, and moral death in the 203 wrongdoer. However, blessing leads to prosperity as opposed to death.

204 A blessed person is free from self-blame, remorse, punishment, and fear, giving him hope, vision, and 205 resurrection. In this way, the blessed individual will be able to look forward to success. Thus, subjugation 206 in local culture makes it not only a matter of choice and decision but also of obligation. The finding also showed 207 that a person who is disobedient to the community’s socio-cultural values and norms would be cursed. However, 208 before cursing, detailed investigation carried out upon the individual, and advice given to the person by his 209 friends.

211 11 Conclusion

212 Documents showed that society believes in curses and blessings, give it a significant place. They originated at 213 one time when human civilization and religious beliefs were not prevalent and were co-created since the creation 214 of human beings.

215 In this system, we can find individuals who convince themselves of their greatness and claim to be associated 216 with the Creator. These include tribal leaders, religious leaders, and other prominent social leaders. These people 217 have been given the responsibility to bless and curse the community. Therefore, just as a good person blessed in 218 the community, so is a terrible person who receives a curse for his work as punishment.

219 According to the study’s finding, they had been convinced that the curser will hand over the cursed person to 220 another supernatural power. Thus, the curser believed to have the authority to command the plagues, which can

221 devastate the cursed has hoped for, the dreams he/she has realized, the plans he/she has achieved, the wealth 222 possessed, and the power to seize. On the contrary, it has been believed that a blessed will achieve total success.
223 These two issues not only increase morale punishment in the community but also build morality in the next 224 generation. Furthermore, the study found that conflicts in the society neglected by the modern law could be 225 investigated and resolved by this system. It used to deliver various social issues, including justice.

226 Blessings and curses have a powerful effect on human emotions, such as anxiety, fear, concern, happiness, and
